THE POINT OF SALE.

The supreme court of New Jersey has decided a point which makes far more sense than the prohibition law in that state. It has decided that the point of sale is the place where the liquor passes from the deliverer to the consumer, regardless of where or how the money was paid.

The issue may be stated as follows: A licensed wholesaler dealer in Atlantic county sold and delivered liquor in Cumberland county, particularly in Vineland, which is a prohibition town. He was arrested, indicted and convicted, together with his son, who drove the "bus" and delivered the goods. He was appealed to the supreme court, but the latter affirmed the conviction of the trial court.

The Newark News, commenting on the case, says:
"Deciding upon this decision, Justice Barker recently charged the Morris county grand jury that dealers in another county delivering in Morris, or dealers in Morris delivering in Union, should be indicted. Judge Horner of Burlington, in licensing several wholesalers, warned them that they were licensed to sell only at a specific place within the town, borough or city, and not licensed to sell or deliver goods anywhere outside of the municipal limits." "This decision of the supreme court seems also to recover all cases of buying liquor from department stores in other states to be delivered in this state."

Under a federal statute liquor brought into any state became at once subject to the same regulations as if they were distilled or brewed in the state. Under this act and the recent supreme court decision, therefore the mere delivery of liquor from one state to another states to citizens in New Jersey constitutes a sale, though no money whatever passes in this state.

This shows the prohibitionists that there is no necessity for the national law which they have been asking congress to pass to prevent liquor being transported from license into non-license states, since the state itself has power to define sales and to regulate the own affairs.

REFUSE TO APPROVE.

It looks now as if the agricultural states of the country would approve of the federal income tax constitutional amendment and the industrial states disapprove of it. The six or seven states which have already approved of it have few industries, while those which disapprove have many. The disapproving action of the leading industrial commonwealths, Connecticut has postponed action until the next meeting of the legislature and the New York and Massachusetts legislatures have refused to approve the proposed amendment, and with such illustrious examples Connecticut may be not regarded as likely to, and other states will follow, so that it is questionable if the requisite endorsement of the measure can be obtained to make it the law of the land.

In defense of the action of Massachusetts and New York, the Boston Herald says:
"Either of these states can be regarded on to be first and most generous to respond to the call of the nation in time of need. They would supply man for war and money for war as well. They are none the less liberal, because they insist on maintaining the rights of statehood which were preserved by the fundamental compact of the states. They are quite ready to tear up the old document and experiment with new doctrine, unless there is some compelling reason, and nothing of that nature has yet been offered as an argument for the proposed amendment."

RECEIPTS FROM CORPORATION TAX.

The corporation tax is reaching the United States treasury slowly and the receipts now amount to about a quarter of a million dollars, which, since the assessments under the law amount to $4,627,000, is taken as a sign that the interest in the law is growing. The decision of the supreme court upon the law, rather than hurrying to comply with it, since there are several suits pending upon the ground that the law is unconstitutional, and the decision is being looked for daily.

If the law is declared void, then it may be presumed, the treasury will be called upon to refund what has already been paid in, while the inability to realize anything further from this tax may force the treasury to issue an amount of treasury certificates, perhaps $100,000,000. Upon the impending decision in the tax suits the whole matter hangs. If the decision sustains the constitutionality of the law many times will be collected and there will be a rush to square accounts as speedily as possible.

CANNOT BE READ OUT.

The attention of republicans is being called to the fact that the insurgents cannot be read out of their party by Speaker Cannon or any one allied to him. They are men representing republican districts, were chosen by republicans, are staunch upon the Chicago platform, are protectionists, and simply "insurgents" for a revision of the tariff downward, and the keeping of the party pledge, as the convention recommended, and the people at large believed in. The insurgents subscribe to the platform resolution: "We declare our unflinching adherence to the policies thus inaugurated and pledge their continuance under a republican administration of the government."

They have not departed from the faith, but invited the democrats to act with them, and they have so acted, making insurgent victories, not democratic victories. It is used that these men have not been making public sentiment but acting upon the republican demand back of them; and that they are as true republicans now when they are elected to office. They all confidently expect to be elected to congress on the records they have made, and should this be the result of the elections in November the truth of the above definition of insurgency will have to be accepted, and it looks as if a re-election would be their reward.

NOT A WHITED SEPULCHRE.

The portly gentlemen of today will find consolation in the conclusions of Dr. George M. Niles of Georgia concerning their ample tissues and rotund fronts, for he does not regard them as victims of an insatiable appetite or types of an overloaded and dying type of his fellow men. This is what the doctor has to say with regard to fat and its uses:

"The conclusion is obvious that by its concentrated fuel-power fat precedes other tissues, especially the albuminous, from destruction by oxidation and is valuable as a reserve force, instantly available when any vital emergency requiring it arises."

"We might with propriety liken fat to the housewife who, though not apparently earning anything, by her care and industry conserves the fruits of her husband's labor, enabling him not only to support the domestic establishment, but also to lay aside a surplus."

"If I may apply a Scriptural quotation, this reserve, in language intelligible to those forces, says: 'Thou hast much goods laid up for many years; take thou ease, eat, drink and be merry.'"

There are dietists and doctors who will take exceptions to this, but the fat man will not. He still believes that good grub and good fat and good humor are the trinity of Billikin; and Billikin smiles on forever.

Spraying Trees.

Some of the census enumerators are turning out to be missionaries. It is said that some of them are going to call on the old and infirm persons and urge them to have their trees sprayed. One of the enumerators in Bridgeport discovered an old woman of 82 years, forced to live by ungrateful sons, in a barn filled with rats and dirt. The woman was barely alive upon was grudgingly given by the children. The enumerators naturally report the case and the authorities will look into it. —Meriden Record.

THE MAN WHO TALKS.

You have noticed how the unwritten law of life works. Talent and genius and power are the heritage of one race or family, and they are found in all races and families. The same may be said of virtue and vice and attainment. The family of economic and a competence often breeds spendthrifts who sink to the depths of squalor; and from the poorest rise the rich and powerful. You may have noticed how an atmosphere of quiet elegance and virtue produces the opposite, hence the old proverb about ministers' sons and deacons' daughters. The natural order of things upsets man's calculations. Life is a mystery to all the hows and the whys we cannot fathom makes it a riddle. The "whatever is right" of Pope, has not received popular endorsement, and in whatever there is a purpose. Life is a mystery and a riddle is the teacher. Blessed is he who has learned life's lessons well.

Loyalty is a prime virtue. And it is cultivated in one form and another by all peoples. It is set forth in the old story of the brave heart and the obligations, loyalty to country and flag, and last but not least loyalty to the better promptings of the heart. This last is the most interesting, for it is honoring the better self—is to live up to the good promptings of the spirit; and it always encounters opposition and costs money.
